

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A multispectral photodetector array includes a two-dimensional array of photodetectors, either photodiodes or photoconductors, are coupled to a read out integrated circuit.

- 5 The integrated circuit collects electrical signals from individual pixels of the array. Such an array differs from a conventional array in that each row or group of rows in the array has a distinct spectral response.